FORTUNE DOES MORE THAN RECOGNIZE POWERFUL WOMEN—WE INSPIRE THEM ALL OVER THE WORLD

FORTUNE SALUTES THE PARTICIPANTS OF THE 2007 FORTUNE/U.S. STATE DEPARTMENT INTERNATIONAL WOMEN LEADERS MENTORING PARTNERSHIP

Mentee Dr. Rashmi Tiwari of New Delhi, India, with her mentor Anne Mulcahy, Chairman and CEO, Xerox

This May, 32 top female executives from some of America's most influential corporations—all of them participants in FORTUNE's Most Powerful Women Summit—devoted three weeks to mentoring outstanding women business leaders from 20 developing countries.

The FORTUNE/U.S. State Department Mentoring Partnership connects rising executives to some of the top leaders in global business, allowing day-to-day access and insight into leadership and decision-making. Most importantly, the program gives them the tools to create change and inspire women in their home countries.

FORTUNE thanks the U.S. State Department, Vital Voices and the Most Powerful Women Summit participants who mentored. To learn more about this program, go to www.vitalvoices.org.
